USSR: Khrushchev has again promised the consumer an improved standard of living.

Guidelines for the 1964-65 economic plan, announced by the Soviet Government on 3 June, give priority to the chemical industry explicitly in support of agriculture, consumer goods, and chemical substitutes for certain metals.

The guidelines follow the general line Khrushchev dictated to the central committee plenum last November. They reflect his personal concern over the lack of progress in agriculture and his awareness of the need for further improvements in consumer incentives to spark the over-all economic program.

Details of the two-year plan--a planning innovation--will be announced sometime during the last two months of this year. The guidelines give no clue to the extent of new investment for the chemical industry. Military priorities are not mentioned.

NOTES

Iraq: The US Embassy in Baghdad reports that the Iraqi Government apparently is planning an early military attack on the Kurds. The attack will come after the government issues a decentralization law on which the Kurds have not been consulted and which they will almost certainly reject. During the past few weeks both the Kurds and the central government have made extensive preparations for military action.

Dominican Republic: The US Embassy reports that Communist potential has remained at a low level since President Bosch took office, but it is concerned about the recently increased strength of the pro-Castro, Communist-infiltrated group known as the 14th of June Political Group. The embassy comments that this is the only political movement in the country reaching important sectors of the population. Its activities have been facilitated by the Bosch government's continuing reluctance to regulate extreme leftist groups and by the curtailment of the ruling Dominican Revolutionary Party's organizational and propaganda activities because of financial difficulties.

Argentina: Peron, possibly fearful of losing control over the rank and file of his followers, may be trying to provoke a total proscription of Peronist candidates in the 7 July elections. [redacted] reasons that he would lose control of his supporters, who would look more to the officials they elect than to him. To achieve his objectives, Peron has been resorting to such devious maneuvers as issuing conflicting orders to his lieutenants to stir up confusion, as well as to more direct means such as the Peronist-sponsored "Protest Week" which ended in a one-day general strike on 31 May.
